FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Disadvantaged children in 67 Arkansas counties got an extra educational boost this summer when 123,754 of them enrolled in remedial and enrichment programs provided under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Federal funds amounting to $1,584,381 were spent on the summer programs which were held in 173 districts. All of the youngsters were enrolled in public schools except for 929 in non-public schools and 389 who were not enrolled in any school. Some of the latter children were dropouts who had not been attending during the regular year but who were pulled back into the special summer program and whom school officials hoped would remain for the regular program in September.

Most of the summer schools offered general remedial programs but 37 districts offered language arts programs, 16 offered kindergarten and pre-school, 13, recreation programs, 13, guidance and social programs, 11, library centers, eight cultural programs, and six, vocational programs.

Six pre-school programs were operated cooperatively with Headstart. This included those at Magnet Cove, Malvern, Oil Trough, Lynn, Scranton, and Benton. Others conducted independently were those at Crossett, Woodlawn, Sparkman, Desha-Drew, Charleston, England, Texarkana, Central at Common, Fort Smith, and McRae. A total of $68,980 was spent on the kindergarten and pre-school programs in Arkansas in Title I funds.
